

Noah J. Sabich

Mr. Sabich is a Partner and Founding Member of Cimbria. He is based in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Noah J. Sabich is a founding member of Cimbria and responsible for assisting in deal flow origination, due-diligence efforts, investor relations, company marketing, and execution of the firm's value-add initiative for partner companies – the Acceleration Program.

Prior to joining Cimbria, Mr. Sabich was the Director of Sustainability and Statesmanship at Rasmussen Public Affairs. In this position he developed and implemented transatlantic market expansion and corporate management strategies for large multinationals specializing in water technology and natural agriculture products and services. Mr. Sabich worked closely with senior executives and consultant teams across the United States and Europe on corporate strategy, global issues analysis, and risk assessment.

Mr. Sabich has spent his professional career specializing in corporate leadership, business management, and value creation strategies. He is an active thought-leader and regular invited speaker at international summits on water investment and sustainable business. During his career Mr. Sabich has worked on engagements in developed and emerging markets throughout North America, Europe, North Africa, South America, and Oceania. He is also a founding member of Acaté Amazon Conservation, an internationally recognized non-profit known for its innovative conservation programs with the Matsés tribe in the Peruvian Amazon.

Mr. Sabich serves on the Board of Directors at AMI Global and APX10 A/S, is a Senior Advisor at Develiot and Fixed Earth Innovations, and is a Board Advisor at Slater Infrastructure Group. Mr. Sabich holds a Ph.D. and M.A. from the University of Connecticut in French with a specialization in post-colonial relations. He also holds an M.A. in Francophone studies from Middlebury College, and a B.A. in European History and French from Bates College.